PREPARE STUDENTS WITH GALE IN CONTEXT

DEVELOP ESSENTIAL MEDIA LITERACY SKILLS

What's fact and what's fiction? In a world of misinformation and social media, it can be difficult to tell. That's why students must learn to think critically about what they read on the internet, recognize fake news, and become responsible digital citizens.

Designed to support this learning process over time, Gale's resources are structured to build the skills students need to access, evaluate, and analyze digital messages from a variety of diverse sources, including primary and secondary sources, opinion articles, photos, infographics, videos, and more.

PROVIDE CROSS-CURRICULAR, REAL-WORLD CONTENT

Gale In Context resources allow students to practice essential media literacy skills during everyday learning. The variety of content types and sources gets students used to asking questions and consuming media safely and responsibly. Support media literacy with:

- Scaffolded authentic texts from the real world, so students learn to scan and evaluate sources quickly.

- Platform tools to determine the credibility of a publisher or author by clicking to see what else they have written and identify trends.

- Viewpoint articles that encourage students to analyze and think critically about claims.

- Primary and secondary sources that help students distinguish between fact and opinion and understand bias.

- Unique topic pages that collect information from reliable sources, making it easy for students to compare and contrast different sources and headlines.

- Current content that engages students, so they can make informed decisions about the world around them.

- Customizable lesson plans and built-in critical-thinking questions that make it easier to integrate media literacy concepts into the existing curriculum.

- Specific media literacy content about topics like judging media bias, fake news, social media, and more.
