Asia and the West: Diplomacy and Cultural Exchange

Prior to the nineteenth century, much of what was known as the Far East remained closed to all but the most determined missionaries, traders, and sea captains. But in the nineteenth century the countries of these regions were confronted head-on by Western nations and forced into an expanding level of contact—an opening that was fraught with domestic social unrest and foreign conflict, especially in China.

As the industrializing nations of the West stepped up their competition for new overseas markets in the early nineteenth century, Asian governments found themselves increasingly unable, either economically or militarily, to control or limit foreign trade demands. By the 1840s Western nations, moving rapidly ahead in technology, organizational skills, and military power, forced the old order of tribute relations to give way. A new system of “treaty ports,” initiated by Great Britain in China and the United States in Japan, became the framework through which Western nations established formal diplomatic relations and pursued commercial opportunity in East Asia. China’s treaty ports, particularly Shanghai and Canton, represented an aggressive and highly dynamic new order. Hundreds of foreign firms competed in all aspects of trade. The treaty ports and...

h century.

The nineteenth century was the first great age of industrialization and technological innovation. It was an age of political revolution and reform, nationalism and nation building, the expansion of empire and colonialism, growing literacy and education, and the flowering of culture—both popular and high. It was an age that witnessed the development of the power-driven printing press and a massive explosion of written material that dwarfed the output of the centuries that preceded it...

The screenshot displays the Gale Primary Sources interface for 'Nineteenth Century Collections Online'. The search term 'Karl Marx' is entered in the search bar. The results are filtered to 'All Content Types', showing 335 Monographs, 40 Manuscripts, 1,369 Newspapers & Periodicals, and 1 Photograph. The 'MONOGRAPHS (335)' category is selected, showing three results:

- Wage-labour and capital: by Karl Marx; translated by J. L. Joynes. Author: Karl Marx. Publisher: Printed and published by the Twentieth Century Press, Ltd (London). 1893, 27 pages. Archive: British Politics and Society. Collection: British Labour History Ephemera.
- Manifesto of the Communist Party: by Karl Marx and Frederick Engels; authorised english translation; edited and annotated by Frederick Engels, 1888. Author: Karl Marx. Publisher: William Reeves (London). 1888, 5th Edition, 28 pages. Archive: British Politics and Society. Collection: British Labour History Ephemera.
- Factory industry and socialism: by William Smart, M. A., lecturer on Political Economy in Queen Margaret College, Glasgow, and in University College, Dundee. Author: William Smart. Publisher: Printed by R. Anderson (Glasgow).

On the right side, there are filters for 'FILTER YOUR RESULTS' (Archives, Source Library, Document Type, Publication Date, Languages, Subjects, Author - Items By, Person - About, Search Within), a 'TOPIC FINDER' section, and a 'TERM FREQUENCY' section. A 'BROADEN YOUR SEARCH' section at the bottom right encourages using the cross-search feature.

The screenshot displays the Gale Primary Sources interface. At the top, the logo 'GALE PRIMARY SOURCES' and 'Nineteenth Century Collections Online' are visible. A search bar and navigation icons (Cite, Send To..., Download, Print, Get Link) are present. The main content area shows the title 'Manifesto of the Communist Party: by Karl Marx and Frederick Engels; authorised english translation; edited and annotated by Frederick Engels, 1888'. Below the title, it lists the author (Karl Marx), archive (British Politics and Society), and collection (British Labour History Ephemera). The central part of the page features a large image of the title page of the Communist Manifesto, with a blue hand icon pointing to the 'View Full Citation' button in the left sidebar. To the right of the image, the 'DOCUMENT TEXT' section shows the OCR confidence (46%) and the full OCR text of the title page.
